(Annex IV, Printout from the databases of www.net.cn, Printout from the database of www.cnnic.net.cn)

(III) The trademark “兰蔻” owned by the Complainant has a high reputation in China and is a well-known trademark.

The trademark “兰蔻” owned by the Complainant is one of the 26 well-known trademarks recognized by the Trademark Office of the State Administration for Industry and Commerce in the first half of the year 2004. It received special protection since. (Annex V, the list of the well-known trademarks recognized in the first half year of 2004 issued by the official website of Trademark Office). Here, the Complainant will establish details concerning the reputation of the trademark “兰蔻”.

As mentioned above, the Complainant LANCOME PARFUMES ET BEAUTE & CIE was established in 1935 with its headquarters in Paris. Its products cover body lotion series, make-up series and perfume series. The Complainant established research centers for exploitation and development of new products in France, Japan and the U.S. Since its establishment, the Complainant has launched 5 kinds of perfume and 2 kinds of cologne. Its products were fashionable in the 1930s for their elegance and novelty. The Complainant joined the L’OREAL Group in 1964 and began to develop internationally as the first top-grade brand acceding to the Group. In 1983, “兰蔻” entered MACY’s Department Store, one of the largest department stores in the U.S. and increased its sale by 25% that year through specialization. At present, the Complainant’s “兰蔻” brand has become No.1 in France and No.2 worldwide in the field of cosmetic.

In early 1993, the Complainant formally set up special counters in big-sized and top-grade department stores in China, and has a number of specially trained beauty consultants. So far, the Complainant has a total of 45 special counters in 22 cities in China. In the department stores, it provides not only products but also the service of special beauty advisors, satisfying the needs of consumers. According to statistics, the sale of “兰蔻” products in the Shanghai Pacific Department Store Huaihai Branch comes up to 8 millions a year; in 2003, the total sale of “兰蔻” products in Hangzhou Tower added up to 17 millions; also in 2003, Chengdu Pacific Department Store made a sale record of 830 thousands in one day during its 10th anniversary celebration of “兰蔻”. 2006 is the 13th year that LANCOME had entered into the Chinese market. During the past 12 years, “兰蔻” has become the No.1 brand in the field of top-grade cosmetic in China with all of its famous products such as mascara, eye cream and night cream etc. going beyond 50% respectively. (Annex VI, the article “success of LANCOME”, from www.globrand.com).

To enhance its reputation and recognition, the Complainant promotes its products through the internet, television, broadcast, VCD, DVD, magazines, newspaper, poster, and so on. Furthermore, it invited world-famous movie stars to

The “兰蔻” brand enjoys high reputation through numerous advertisements. In the Shangbiao Yi Zi No. 00239 decision (2003) on Trademark Opposition against “兰蔻LANCOME” made by the Trademark Office, it is pointed out that the trademark “兰蔻LANCOME” has become a cosmetic brand familiar to Chinese consumers. (Annex VIII, the copy of the Decision of (2003) Shangbiao Yi Zi No. 00239 on Trademark Opposition against “兰蔻LANCOME”). Thus it can be seen that the Trademark Office has fully confirmed “兰蔻” reputation.

To sum up, the trademark “兰蔻” owned by the Complainant deserves the designation of a well-known trademark.

Parties’ Contentions

Claimant

The Complainant

I) The main part of the domain name “兰蔻.net” registered by the Respondent is identical with to the Complainant’s trademark “兰蔻” in its pronunciation, appearance and arrangement of letters, thus is likely to cause confusion.

II) The Respondent does not enjoy any legitimate right or interest concerning the registered domain name “兰蔻.net”.
Ø The Respondent does not enjoy exclusive right to the trademark “兰蔻”;
Ø The Complainant has never authorized or licensed the Respondent to use the trademark “兰蔻”, and has never transferred the trademark “兰蔻” to the Respondent. As far as the Complainant knows, the Respondent has never obtained authorization or license for the trademark “兰蔻” from any channel;
Ø Upon investigation, the registrar of the disputed domain name is neither employee of the Complainant, nor authorized person to register the disputed domain name. Also, there is no relationship such as entrustment and cooperation between the Complainant and the Respondent.
Ø Upon investigation, the Respondent has never actually used the disputed domain name.

To sum up, the Respondent does not enjoy any legitimate right or interest regarding the registered domain name “兰蔻.net”.

III) The Respondent has registered the disputed domain name in bad faith.

As it is known, the registered domain name could only achieve its function and value after having been connected to a specific website. As a well-known trademark owned by the Complainant, “兰蔻” is known and loved by consumers through large amount of advertisements and wide registration in China and all over the world. Products bearing the trademark “兰蔻/LANCOME” can be found in any country. More importantly, the Trademark Office of the State Administration for Industry and Commerce had recognized it as a well-known trademark. Thus, the Respondent should know the Complainant’s “兰蔻” brand. However, the Respondent still registered the Complainant’s well-known trademark as its domain name in this situation. Therefore, it can be observed that the Respondent’s act is viciously conducted. Also upon investigation, it is found that the Respondent has not actually used nor have prepared to use the disputed domain name after registration. The disputed domain name “兰蔻.net” does not direct to any website. When visiting the disputed domain name, “Page not found” is displayed. (Annex IX, the status of the disputed domain name “兰蔻.net”). In addition, the Respondent is a natural person and has no relationship with “兰蔻”. Therefore, the Respondent’s purpose in registering the disputed domain name is questionable. The Complainant considers that the Respondent’s purpose in registering the disputed domain name is to gain unlawful benefits, restrain the Complainant from using its lawfully registered trademark on the internet under the domain name兰蔻.net, thus affecting the Complainant’s normal business operation. The Respondent’s act is obviously conducted in bad faith.

Moreover, the Complainant considers that the Respondent enjoys neither legitimate right on the disputed domain name nor on its main part. The Respondent’s purpose in registering the disputed domain name is to gain unlawful benefits by utilizing the high reputation of the Complainant’s well-known trademark hence unavoidably causing the consumers’ confusion and misidentification. For the Complainant’s clients and other consumers who know the Complainant’s trademark, “兰蔻” in the disputed domain name can easily mislead them into believing that the disputed domain name has a certain connection with the Complainant’s well-known trademark “兰蔻”. The Respondent’s act violates the honesty and creditability principle, therefore is obviously conducted in bad faith.

It is noticeable that, the Respondent had also registered the domain names “羽西.网络” and “羽西.net” except the disputed domain name. (Annex X, Printout from the database of www.DomainSite.com for the domain names “羽西.网络” and “羽西.net” on October 17, 2006). While “羽西” is the well-known trademark of the Complainant, L’OREAL (China) Co., Ltd. Sister company. Thus, it can be seen that the Respondent is very familiar with the Complainant and its sister company, and that the Respondent did not accidentally register the disputed domain name, but intended to break the Complainant’s normal business operation and gain unlawful benefits with obvious bad faith.

The above facts show that the Respondent’s act in registering the disputed domain name is not accidental and is obviously of bad faith. Thus, the Respondent’s act has fallen into the conditions of bad faith provided in Section (ii) of Item b of Article 4 of “Uniform Policy for Domain Name Dispute Resolution”, namely, “The disputed domain name holder registered the domain name in order to prevent the owner of the trademark or service mark from reflecting the said mark in a corresponding domain name”.

Respondent
The Respondent did not file a response within the stipulated time.

Findings

According to Paragraph 4a of the Policy which is applicable hereto, the Complainant has the burden of proving:

1) that the domain name registered by the Respondent is identical or confusingly similar to a trademark or service mark in which the Complainant has rights; and

2) that the Respondent has no rights or legitimate interests in respect of the domain name; and

3) that the domain name has been registered and is being used in bad faith.

Identical / Confusingly Similar

According to the evidence provided by the Complainant, the Panel finds that the Complainant is the proprietor of the trademark “兰蔻”. The Complainant obtained registration of “兰蔻” as a trademark in Classes 3, 25 and 42 in China, and the earliest date of registration (Registration No. 1535972) was 7 March 2001, which is prior to the registration date (10 June 2003) of the disputed domain name. Thus, the Panel is of the opinion that the Complainant enjoys the prior trademark right to “兰蔻”.

“兰蔻” as the identifying part of the disputed domain name is exactly the same as the Complainant’s trademark as stated above. Thus the disputed domain name is confusingly similar, both visually and phonetically, to the Complainant’s registered trademark.

Based on the submission of evidence, the trademark “兰蔻” does enjoy a high reputation in China through the Complainant’s long-term promotional and commercial activities, and it has been recognized as a well-known trademark by the Trademark Office of the State Administration of Industry and Commerce since 2004. Considering the prior rights in the trademark “兰蔻” owned by the Complainant along with its reputation and goodwill, the Panel finds that the disputed domain name is identical or confusingly similar to the Respondent’s trademark; the Complainant has satisfied the first condition under Paragraph 4(a) of the Policy.

Rights and Legitimate Interests

In light of the fact that the Complainant has not authorized, licensed, endorsed or otherwise permitted the Respondent to use its trademark and that “兰蔻” appears to be a coined word which the Respondent would not legitimately choose unless seeking to create an impression of association with the Complainant, the Panel can fathom no possible legitimate connection or interest between the Respondent and the disputed domain name. Furthermore, the Respondent has not filed any response and has failed to prove that he has any right or legitimate interest regarding the disputed domain name. Due to the default and the evidence in the Complaint, it is presumed that the Respondent has no right or legitimate interest in the disputed domain name.
Accordingly, the Panel finds that the Complainant has satisfied the second condition under Paragraph 4(a) of the Policy.

Bad Faith

In accordance with Paragraph 4 (b) of UDRP setting out 4 non-exclusive criteria which shall be evidence to the registration and use of a domain name in bad faith:

(i) the respondent has registered or has acquired the domain name primarily for the purpose of selling, renting, or otherwise transferring the domain name registration to the complainant who is the owner of the trade mark or service mark or to a competitor of that complainant for valuable consideration in excess of the respondent’s documented out-of-pocket costs directly related to the domain name; or

(ii) the respondent has registered the domain name in order to prevent the owner of the trade mark or service mark from reflecting the mark in a corresponding domain name, provided that the respondent has engaged in a pattern of such conduct; or

(iii) the respondent has registered the domain name primarily for the purpose of disrupting the business of a competitor; or

(iv) by using the domain name, the respondent has intentionally attempted to attract, for commercial gain, Internet users to its web site or other on-line location, by creating a likelihood of confusion with the complainant’s mark as to the source, sponsorship, affiliation, or endorsement of its web site or location or of a product or service on its web site or location.

First of all, given the inherent distinctiveness and fame of the Complainant’s mark “兰蔻” as a well-known trademark recognized by the Trademark Office of the State Administration of Industry and Commerce, and the fact that the Respondent registered another famous trademark, “羽西”, in cosmetic field as the domain name, the Panel finds it difficult to accept that the Respondent registered the domain name without knowledge of the Complainant’s rights in “兰蔻”. Moreover, it cannot be a mere coincidence that the Respondent has chosen the disputed domain name, identical to and is an imitation of the Complainant’s trademark, as his domain name. These findings, together with the above finding that the Respondent has no right or interest in the domain name, allow the Panel to conclude that the disputed domain name has been registered by the Respondent in bad faith.

Secondly, as demonstrated above, the Respondent should have been aware of the Complainant and the Complainant’s trademarks when registering the disputed domain name “兰蔻.net” which is the Complainant’s trademark “兰蔻” only. This act inevitably prevents the Complainant from reflecting its trade name/trademark in such corresponding domain names. Accordingly, the stipulations of paragraph 4 (b) (ii) concerning the bad faith are satisfied here.

Thirdly, the Complainant has argued that the Respondent has not actually used or prepared to use the disputed domain name after registration. According to Anne. IX (the status of the disputed domain name “兰蔻.net”) provided by the Complainant, the web page displays “Page not found”. The Panel notes that the bad faith conditions may not be limited to the above four conditions according to UDRP. It is possible, in certain circumstances, for passive holding by the Respondent to amount to the domain name being used in bad faith. This point is acknowledged in the Panel Decision in Telstra Corporation Limited v. Nuclear Marshmallows (WIPO Center Case No. D2000-0003). Based on the above analysis, the Complainant’s mark “兰蔻” has a high reputation and is widely known due to its substantial use and promotion in China. Meanwhile, the Respondent has provided no evidence whatsoever of any actual or contemplated usage of good faith of the domain name. Taking into account these particular circumstances, the panel may infer that the Respondent has no real intention of active usage of the disputed domain name, and such act constitutes a passive holding of the disputed domain name and amounts to the domain name being used in bad faith.

In light of all of the above circumstances, the Panel concludes that the Complainant has satisfied the third condition under Paragraph 4(a) of the Policy.

Status

www.兰蔻.net Domain Name Transfer

Decision

For all the forgoing reasons, the Panel has decided that the Complainant has sufficiently proved the three elements of Paragraph 4(a) of UDRP. Accordingly, the Panel directs that the disputed domain name be transferred to the Complainant.
